WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—There was a full Cabinet to-day, except Robinson. The President has commuted the death sentence of the Virginian, who killed the Virginia driver, and has been sentenced to be hanged November 4th.

The following letter was written to-day:
U. S. TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.

Sir:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the memorial of the Charleston, S. C. Chamber of Commerce, addressed to the President of the United States, and referred to this department, which, after reiterating the present stringency in the money market and the difficulty of obtaining currency, requests that the sum of five hundred thousand dollars be placed and maintained on deposit with the Assistant Treasurer of Charleston, to be used by him in the purchase at New York exchange from the Banks.

To comply with the request it would be necessary for the Treasury Department to send currency by express to Charleston, and to time, and to buy with it exchange on New York in competition with private bankers. Should this request be granted a hundred other places in the country might, with equal propriety, ask for the same, and all such requests were impartially granted, the Department would find itself engaged in an extensive exchange business, fixing and regulating the rate of exchange between different places in the country, and the public money, raised by taxation only for the purpose of carrying on the Government, would be employed to a very large amount in a business which Congress has not given the Secretary of the Treasury any authority to engage in. With due regard to the proper management of the Treasury Department, within the provisions of law, I have felt it to be my duty to decline all similar proposition from other places, and your request must, therefore, receive the same response.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully yours,
W. A. RICHARDSON,
Sec'y Treasury.

The Unfortunate Modes.—Preparations for the execution of Capt. Jack, Schenckin, Boston Charley, Black Jim, Barncho, and Silcock at 10 o'clock a. m. to-day, at Fort Knatch. The scaffold is a large contrivance, and just outside of the Fort. Some delay may be occasioned by the circumstance that the order for the execution will have to be interpreted for the condemned. They seem much depressed from the knowledge of their impending fate.

VOL. III. RALEIGH, N. C. SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 4, 1873. NO. 29.

Meeting of the Evangelical Alliance.—Large Attendance—Many Distinguished Persons Present.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Evangelical Conference opened, with prayer, this morning at Madison Square Church. The formal opening for business took place later in Steinway Hall. The vast hall was crowded to excess with delegates. They swarmed out on the lobbies and the stairs at either end of the block, through which the hall extends. The large platform was so crowded that as early as 10 o'clock there was hardly standing room. The Oriental delegates, in white tarletons, were conspicuous objects in the vicinity of the chair.

Hon. Wm. Dodge called the meeting to order and said: "You are here assembled from all parts of the world; from countries having institutions and laws quite different from ours. As for us we seek no alliance with the State. We only ask protection and the full enjoyment of religious liberty. [Great applause.] We are here to say to you that you will have an opportunity of visiting our far western lands and beyond our inland seas, and of seeing the marvelous extension our country is undergoing. When we visit your countries we are deeply interested in thinking over the works of centuries. Your grand cathedrals and your cities of renown. When you come we ask you to look at what has mainly been accomplished in a single century.

The object of our meeting has been discussed for a long time, and humanity is alive to this Convention. Not only our own, but other lands are viewing you with intense interest. The eyes of God and man are upon us. [Applause.] Let us hope that the blessing of God may be upon us.

Everything possible has been done for your comfort. I give you the sentiments of all our hearts in bidding you a most cordial welcome to our country, our homes and our hearts. [Applause.]

After singing the Doxology, prayer was given by Rev. Dr. Hodge, of Princeton. Rev. Dr. Pigg, of London, next read a portion of the 17th chapter of St. John, after which the prayer was read by Rev. Dr. Pigg, of London, and followed by the Dean of Canterbury, with the Creed. The entire Conference then rose and sang with one voice the Evangelical hymn, "Coronation."

The business of the permanent organization was then taken up, and the list of officers read was adopted. Dr. Theodore D. Woolsey, of New Haven, was appointed President and Dr. S. J. Prime, General Secretary. Among the Vice Presidents were, Wm. F. Havemeyer, Lord Alfred of England, Hon. R. C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, Rev. A. Donnor, Rev. Mr. Buckingham, of Connecticut and Wm. Dodge, of New York. Rev. Dr. Schenk and others were appointed honorary Secretaries.

President Dr. Woolsey, then took the Chair amidst applause and delivered an address. He said: "We are met here to-day because we believe in the communion of the saints. [Applause.] We believe that man in his nature is sinful, and in need of want and his need of redemption is one. [Applause.] and that God is one, and that in all the various unfoldings of the christian character and christian life there is one Christian character, the spirit of love for God and love for man, resting in Jesus Christ, our Lord, in the hope of redemption through Him. [Applause.] We believe in the one great universal Church that has lasted through all time, and that it is the end of all things. [Applause.] Notwithstanding the inefficiency of prayer has been demonstrated by science. [great laughter and applause.] The Church goes on praying still the same, and as long as there are Christians in the world they will pray incessantly in spite of all logical conclusions. [Applause.] Thus, too, we believe in the diffusiveness of the gospel.

Gentlemen, I need not repeat the welcome already given you, yet as you, President may once more say to you, that we welcome you all; we welcome you the Lutheran; we welcome the children of the Free Heresy of Switzerland, and the representatives of France—the much suffering and the Church of France. [Applause.] We welcome those from all other parts of Europe and those who have come, like the first fruits, from Eastern lands.

It was then announced that it had been agreed upon that the pastors should make their own arrangements with delegates as to services. The Dean of Canterbury then read a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury, praying for God's blessings on the efforts for the spirit of reformation. Never, he says, was there more apt for attempting to check the spread of superstition, and he trusts that all will cordially unite in doing so.

Rev. M. Prochet, of Italy, spoke on the subject of the Catholic Church in that country. He said: "Plus IX is conscious of its diminished power. The Clergy clung around the Holy See for support, and all are eager to crush the common foe before them. The Italian Priests do not believe what the Pope taught, but only a few years ago nine thousand of them petitioned him to abandon temporal power, but he refused. For all that reformation is not to be expected through Popes of Italy for they are always ready to do the bidding of their masters."

The people, though Roman Catholics in name, are indifferent about their religion, and instead seeking out the truth, prefer to remain inactive in the Church in which they were born.

He referred briefly to the various parties in Italy, and said there were over a half of dozen Protestant denominations, who had each their ceremonies and large congregations, in that country.

After paying tribute to the ingenuity of Jesuits, the speaker said: Italy was divided into three parties, the priests, the protestants and the infidels, and the present indications showed that the Evangelicals were making a slow progress, and would make more if they had sufficient literature of their own.

An autobiographical paper by Professor A. Thulock, D. D. of Halle, Germany, was next read by Dr. Wit-

LOUISE MUEHLBACH.

The cable news of Thursday that Frau Muehlbach (better known by her name do phane "Louise Muehlbach"), the gifted German authoress, is dead, her maiden name was Clara Miller, and as her father occupied a high social and official position, he was able to give her all the advantages of education. Subsequently she married Theodore Muehlbach, a rising literary man, who was afterward appointed Professor of Arts and Sciences in the University of Breslau. Their marriage was happy and blessed with children. But Frau Muehlbach found time, without neglecting household duties, to send out into the world a host of novels, chiefly historical, and upon them her reputation rests. Indeed, she has written too much and too hastily, and there will be danger now that most of her romances will lapse into oblivion. They have had a wide sale in this country, as much on account of their supposed historical value as their interest. In domestic life "Louise Muehlbach" was a devoted wife, a loving mother, and a kind and most hospitable entertainer. Her husband died in 1861, leaving two daughters to her care. The eldest, Theodora, was a successful actress; and Theresa, the younger, emulates the literary skill of her mother.

The handwriting of the late Chief Justice Chase was very peculiar. He wrote a singularly small and almost feminine hand, which, however, he turned off with great rapidity and nervous force.
